Dive into the West Brothers creation - National Reporter System (NRS). We will learn the history and reasoning for this system's creation and examine the tools that make this system ideal for effective and efficient research.

West's National Reporter System (NRS) is a set of case law reporters for federal courts and appellate state courts in the United States and attempts to publish all cases of precedential value.

It started with the North Western Reporter in 1879 which has its origin in The Syllabi.
