Webinar Overview

Alternative dispute resolution is no longer the exception in litigation - - it is often an expected and essential part of modern case strategy. But how do you determine whether mediation or arbitration is the better path for a particular matter?

This practical and engaging webinar will explore the key distinctions between mediation and arbitration, including their advantages, limitations, procedural differences, and strategic considerations.

Whether you are new to litigation support or a seasoned legal professional, this webinar will help you better understand how ADR processes shape today's legal landscape and how your role contributes to successful case outcomes. Participants will gain a stronger understanding of how these processes impact litigation planning, client expectations, cost management, timing, confidentiality, and case resolution.
